Colin Powell Backs Obama

Crossing party lines, he calls Democrat 'transformational'

WASHINGTON | Colin Powell, a Republican who was President Bush's first secretary of state, endorsed Democrat Barack Obama for president Sunday, criticizing the tone of Republican John McCain's campaign.

The former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff said either candidate, both of them senators, is qualified to be commander in chief. But he said Obama is better suited to handle the nation's economic problems as well as help improve its standing in the world.

"I think we need a transformational figure. I think we need a president who is a generational change and that's why I'm supporting Barack Obama, not out of any lack of respect or admiration for Sen. John McCain," Powell said on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Powell's endorsement has been much anticipated because he is a Republican with impressive foreign policy credentials, a subject on which Obama, a first-term senator, is weak.

Powell said he was cognizant of the racial aspect of his endorsement but said that was not the dominant factor in his decision. If it was, he said, he would have made the endorsement months ago.

Powell expressed disappointment in the negative tone of McCain's campaign, his choice of Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin as a running mate, and their decision to focus in the closing weeks of the contest on Obama's ties to 1960s-era radical William Ayers. (AP)

Burglar Knows How To Treat a Lady

A repentant robber in England sent his elderly victim a bouquet of flowers to apologize for frightening her, police said Friday. A 91-year-old woman received the flowers and a note after confronting a burglar in her home around 4 a.m. on Oct. 9, police said. The card explained that the burglar thought the property in Halifax, about 200 miles north of London, was empty and apologized for breaking in. Police said the woman was "very shaken" by the confrontation. "Whoever did this has a conscience and feels guilty for what he has done," West Yorkshire Police Detective Inspector Tony Nicholson said in a statement. (AP)

Burglar Knows How To Dress Like a Lady

Authorities said a 42-year-old man dressed up like the elderly owner of a Baldwin County beauty parlor and tried to break into her shop so he could look at himself in a mirror. The man was wearing a blond wig when he allegedly attempted to burglarize a shop owned by Rose Stevens, 76. "It gave me a chill when the deputy asked, 'Do you wear flowered smocks?'" said Stevens, owner of A Curl & Style. "I said, 'Yes,' and he said they thought he'd made himself up to look like me." The man's brother said he has mental problems and is obsessed with dressing like women. (AP)

Vacuum: 'It Was Fun. I Thought He'd Call.'

Police say a Michigan man has been arrested after "receiving sexual favors from a vacuum" at a car wash. The Saginaw News reports the 29-year-old man was arrested Thursday in Saginaw County's Thomas Township. Police Sgt. Gary Breidinger says a resident called to report suspicious activity at the car wash at about 6:45 a.m. An officer approached on foot and caught the man in the act. (AP)

FUNDRAISING

The $150 Million Man

Sen. Barack Obama shattered, by a country mile, the record for dollars raised in a single month, pulling in $150 million in September, according to an e-mail his campaign sent out Sunday.

"In the month of September, we raised over $150 million and added 632,000 new donors for a total 3.1 million donors to date," the campaign announced. "The average donation for the month was less than $100."

The previous fundraising record, also set by Obama, was $67 million.

Obama

The stunning September number explains how Obama has been able to saturate the airwaves in swing states and afford luxuries such as the half-hour infomercials he plans to run later this month.

Republican National Committee officials have expressed concerns about the potential for abuse with small dollar fundraising on this scale. They have noted examples of fake names used to donate through the Internet. The Obama campaign has said it has vetted donations as fast as possible and would return any questionable contributions. McCain Hones Economic Message

Republican says he'll protect American jobs by not raising taxes

TOLEDO, OHIO | Evoking "Joe the Plumber" near his hometown in this pivotal state, Republican Sen. John McCain on Sunday cast himself as the guardian of middle-class workers and small-business owners who fuel the economy.

"If I'm elected president, I won't raise taxes on small businesses, as Sen. [Barack] Obama proposes and force them to cut jobs," McCain said of his Democratic opponent during a rally at the convention center. "I will keep small-business taxes where they are, help them keep their costs low and let them spend their earnings to create more jobs, not send to Washington."

McCain flew to Toledo, near where "Joe the Plumber" Wurzelbacher lives, from the state capital of Columbus amid the GOP's push for this swing state and its 20 electoral votes.

Sen. John McCain gestures as he quotes his opponent, Sen. Barack Obama, D-Ill., during a campaign rally on Sunday at Otterbein College in Westerville, Ohio.

The Holland, Ohio, plumber was in New York making the media rounds with his family, but McCain has been evoking his spirit after making him the focal point in the final presidential debate between McCain and Obama.

While some analyses showed Wurzelbacher faring better under Obama's plan than McCain's, McCain has lashed out at Obama for saying that while his policies may force some to pay higher taxes,

> "If I'm elected president, I won't raise taxes on small businesses."
> SEN. JOHN MCCAIN

they were designed to "spread the wealth around."

"Sen. Obama is more interested in controlling who gets your piece of the pie than he is growing the pie," McCain told the crowd.

During an earlier rally in Westerville, Ohio, McCain drew cheers when he proclaimed that he was campaigning "on behalf of Joe the Plumber and Rose the Teacher and Phil the Bricklayer and Wendy the Waitress." GLEN JOHNSON (AP)

Alleged Fort Dix Plotters Go on Trial

CAMDEN, N.J. | A jury will hear opening arguments Monday in the trial of five men accused of plotting to kill soldiers at Fort Dix, a case the government has presented as one of the most frightening examples of homegrown terrorism since the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks.

The five defendants — all foreign-born Muslim men in their 20s who have spent much of their lives in the southern New Jersey suburbs — were arrested in May 2007 and accused of plotting to sneak onto Fort Dix to attack soldiers. No attack was carried out, and lawyers for the men say there was no plot.

Mohamad Shnewer, Serdar Tatar and brothers Dritan, Eljvir and Shain Duka face charges of attempted murder, conspiracy and weapons offenses, and could be sentenced to life in prison if convicted on all counts.

Defense lawyers are likely to argue that, while their clients may have spoken ill of the United States and even rooted for terrorists, that does not mean they intended to kill soldiers. GEOFF MULVIHILL (AP)

Abducted Boy Back Home

Police say 6-year-old's kidnappers may have been drug traffickers

LAS VEGAS | A 6-year-old boy abducted from his home at gunpoint was safe in his father's custody Sunday as police tried to untangle any ties the youngster's family had to the Mexican drug dealers suspected of taking him.

Police were interviewing Cole Puffinburger after he was found alone Saturday night on a quiet street outside a Methodist church in Las Vegas.

"We're speaking with the boy today," FBI spokesman David Staretz said Sunday.

Cole's father, Robert Puffinburger, was a picture of relief at a news conference, as he smiled, cried and thanked police and neighbors for helping to bring Cole home.

JOHN LOCHER/AP

"I'm just so glad he's safe," his father said.

Staretz would not comment further on what had happened to Cole in the four days since he was snatched from his mother's home by two men posing as police officers. Police have said they believe the abduction Wednesday was an attempt by drug dealers to send a message to the boy's grandfather.

Cole was found in "extremely good condition" but was taken to University Medical Center as a precaution, Las Vegas police Capt. Vincent Cannito said. Cole was treated and released to his father early Sunday, hospital spokesman Rick Plummer said.

Robert Puffinburger would not comment on Cole's mother or her father, Clemens Tinnemeyer, who police say may have stolen millions from dealers involved in trafficking methamphetamine.

Tinnemeyer was scheduled to appear before a federal magistrate Monday in Riverside, Calif. He was arrested there on Friday.

Analysts: 'Sticky' Prices Won't Fall

Higher costs for goods are here to stay despite the falling price of oil

BUSINESS | Worries over a global recession have pushed the price of oil to its lowest level in more than a year. Don't expect the same for a bottle of beer, a tube of toothpaste or a box of cereal.

You can blame "sticky" prices.

That's what analysts call it when companies slap higher prices on products and keep them there even though the rationale for the price hikes — such as soaring oil prices — is gone.

PAUL SAKUMA/AP FILE

Kris Loew, left, talks with a clerk as she checks out at a supermarket in Palo Alto, Calif. Consumers have struggled to keep up with the rising cost of food this year.

The falling cost of oil could help companies pad their profit margins as they pay less to make and transport goods. But it won't mean a break on the average grocery bill.The price of consumer goods typically lags the price of key inputs like oil and wheat, said Chris Lafakis, an economist with Moody's Economy.com.

Once a price hike is in place, it virtually never goes away, Lafakis said. The one factor than can drive prices down is a drastic drop in demand, but few economists expect the global economic downturn to be so severe it would cause widespread deflation, he said.

That means consumers are in a fix. Prices have been going up broadly across whole categories of products, meaning competitors have been hiking prices in unison.

For prices to drop, consumers have to hope that companies' competitive juices start flowing again. The drop in oil and ingredient prices is creating a high-stakes game of chicken in the shopping aisle, said Lars Perner, assistant professor of marketing at the University of Southern California.

"As soon as the first [company] in a category reduces prices, the others will follow suit. But they're all hoping the other one doesn't" cut prices, Perner said. CARLA K. JOHNSON (AP)

Ruling coalition urges changes in agreement about troops' presence

BAGHDAD | Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki's ruling Shiite coalition withheld support Sunday for the proposed security pact that would keep U.S. troops here for three more years, dealing a blow to American hopes of a speedy approval of the deal.

The statement by the United Iraqi Alliance called for unspecified changes to the draft agreement, which parliament must ratify by the end of the year when the U.N. mandate expires.

The group's move comes a day after tens of thousands of demonstrators, mostly Shiites, took to the streets of Baghdad to show their opposition to the agreement.

The Shiite alliance holds 85 of parliament's 275 seats and al-Maliki needs solid support from the alliance to win approval of the agreement by a strong majority.

The 30 lawmakers loyal to anti-American Shiite cleric Muqtada al-Sadr have already said they will vote against the agreement.

But the alliance represents the groups that profited the most from the 2003 U.S.-led invasion that toppled their archenemy Saddam Hussein. The fact that it was hesitant to commit to the deal underscores the ambivalent feelings many Iraqis have toward the Americans.

ALAA AL-MARJANI/AP

Iraqi troops enter a suspected insurgent's house in Talia'ah, Iraq, on Sunday.

In its statement, the alliance said the agreement contained some "positive points" but more time was needed "for discussion, dialogue and to amend some of its articles."

The agreement provides for American troops to leave Baghdad and other Iraqi cities by the end of June and withdraw from the country entirely by the end of 2011. ROBERT H. REID AND QASSIM ABDUL-ZAHRA (AP)

Israel Mulls Saudi Plan For Peace

Defense minister says leaders reconsider deal to give back Arab lands

JERUSALEM | Israeli leaders are seriously considering a dormant Saudi plan offering a comprehensive peace between Israel and the Arab world in exchange for lands captured during the 1967 war, Defense Minister Ehud Barak said Sunday.

Barak said it may be time to pursue an overall peace deal for the region since individual negotiations with Syria and the Palestinians have made little progress.

Barak said he has discussed the Saudi plan with Prime Minister-designate Tzipi Livni, who is in the process of forming a new Israeli government, and that Israel is considering a response.

Saudi Arabia first proposed the peace initiative in 2002, offering pan-Arab recognition of Israel in exchange for Israel's withdrawal from Arab lands captured in 1967 — the West Bank, Gaza Strip, east Jerusalem and the Golan Heights.

The 22-member Arab League endorsed the Saudi plan last year. ARON HELLER (AP)

Afghan Officials: Taliban Militants Seize Bus, Kill 30

KANDAHAR, AFGHANISTAN | Taliban militants stopped a bus traveling on Afghanistan's main highway through a dangerous part of the country's south, seized about 50 people on board and killed about 30 of them, officials said Sunday.

A Taliban spokesman took responsibility for the attack but claimed to have killed 27 Afghan army soldiers. Afghan officials said no soldiers were aboard and all the victims were civilians.

Militants stopped the bus traveling in a two-bus convoy in a Taliban-controlled area about 40 miles west of Kandahar, said provincial police chief Matiullah Khan.

He said two buses had been traveling together, and the militants had tried to stop the first one but failed. He said the insurgents fired at the first bus, killing a child on board.

Officials gave varying death tolls from the attack, which occurred in an area where government forces cannot travel safely without heavy military protection.

The Afghan Defense Ministry spokesman, Gen. Mohammad Zahir Azimi, said 31 people were killed.

There was no way to independently verify the number of victims. (AP)

China's Factories Close Amid Crisis

Financial woes in U.S. force manufacturers to make less, fire workers

DONGGUAN, CHINA | Unemployed worker Wang Wenming was angry at his boss for shutting down a massive Chinese factory this week that made toys for Mattel Inc., Hasbro Inc. and other American companies.

But the assembly-line worker was also furious at the United States.

"This financial crisis in America is going to kill us. It's already taking food out of our mouths," the 42-year-old laborer said Friday as he stood outside the shuttered Smart Union Group [Holdings] Ltd. factory in Dongguan.

The company, which has struggled as global growth has slowed in recent months, employed 7,000 people in mainland China and Hong Kong. It was not immediately clear how many have lost their jobs.

Workers gather outside a toy factory that closed in Zhang Mu Tou, China, on Friday. China's factory closures will affect the prices of products sold in the U.S.

> "When these companies go bust, the outcome is higher prices."
> ANDY XIE, ECONOMIST

Economic upheaval in the U.S. is already changing and shrinking China's manufacturing hub in the southern province of Guangdong, long regarded as the world's factory floor. However, factory closures will not just be a problem in China — shoppers will feel the effect in stores across the United States and Europe.

"When these companies go bust, the outcome is higher prices," said Andy Xie, an independent economist in Shanghai. "Labor costs have gone up 70 to 100 percent in the last three or four years. But these guys have not been able to raise their prices because Toys "R" Us, Home Depot and Wal-Mart are saying no price increase."

For years, there were too many factories competing to win bids from foreign buyers demanding prices that were often unrealistically low. The winners were American and European consumers.

The percentage of China's toy exporters that went out of business in 2008, the Xinhua News Agency reported.

But many factories were scrimping on materials and stiffing their suppliers just to survive, Xie said. The financial crisis will force many wobbly factories to finally go belly-up, he added. WILLIAM FOREMAN (AP)

Iraqi Puppy Flown to U.S.

SPCA/AP

Army Spc. Gwen Beberg and another soldier rescued Ratchet, an Iraqi dog, in May. With the help of an animal rescue group, Ratchet will arrive in Minnesota this week.

BAGHDAD | Ratchet the Iraqi puppy finally had his day.

An animal rescue group flew into Baghdad on Sunday and picked up the dog, which was adopted by Army Spc. Gwen Beberg, 28, of Minneapolis in a case that highlighted military rules barring troops from caring for pets while in Iraq.

Ratchet was loaded onto a charter flight, which took off Sunday night for Kuwait. He's due in Minnesota later this week.

It was the third try by Operation Baghdad Pups, a U.S. rescue program run by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals International, to get Ratchet out of the country on behalf of Beberg.

She and another soldier rescued the puppy from a burning pile of trash in May.

Beberg's quest to get the dog has gained international attention. More than 65,000 people from Illinois to Italy have signed an online petition urging the Army to let the puppy go to the United States.

The U.S. military has said the dog was free to leave but American troops could not be responsible for its transportation.

Beberg's mother urged the U.S. military to reconsider its policy that bars troops from caring for pets while on duty or taking them home.

"The animals are doing so much good for our soldiers," she said. "The military says it's very concerned about their mental health. ... This is one way to help, and it certainly doesn't cost as much as years and years of therapy." KIM GAMEL (AP)

NISSAN/AP

An Age-Old Approach

Nissan's strap-on suit helps auto designers simulate aging effects

OLD SCHOOL | Nissan calls it an "aging suit," a cumbersome, strap-on outfit that gives young auto designers the feel of driving with a bulging belly, arthritic joints and shaky balance.

The suit — which includes goggles that distort color and mimic the effects of cataracts — is used to simulate the physical effects of aging as designers work to make future vehicles safer and more comfortable.

With the 65-and-older population in the United States expected to double to 70 million — one in five people — by 2030, Nissan Motor Co. and other automakers are looking at safety and comfort design changes as a way to reach for baby boomers' wallets.

Engineers at the Nissan Technology Center outside Tokyo have been using their aging suit to research dashboard switch locations and angles, interior seating and exterior views.

"We are looking at future design," Nissan spokeswoman Julie Lawless said. "It's really to look at the issues of restricted mobility. It stiffens your joints. It's adding about 11 pounds that people will put on as they go through life."

Etsuhiro Watanabe, a design engineer at Nissan's technology center in Japan, said older drivers not only have a harder time getting in and out of seats, but they also have difficulty seeing writing on controls and distinguishing colors on navigation screens.

"It's not always practical to recruit older motorists for product research, so these special suits allow Nissan's engineers and designers to come up with solutions that make car use a safer and more positive experience," he said. BILL POOVEY (AP)

Why do you poo-poo VoIP such as Vonage, saying, "I tried to stick with advice that wouldn't be too difficult or expensive to follow." When I set up Vonage, it was dead-simple. I'd think it would be harder to explain to a non-techy spouse how to use Skype or something similar.

Setting up Vonage requires moving over your entire phone service to that company; you also have to buy the phone adapter and hook that up to your router. Those things do constitute a mental obstacle to some people.

I'm one of those on the fence about getting an iPhone (which I crave except for the price tag of monthly service) or the iPod Touch. I work on a college campus, so there is WiFi, but I'm worried that I will miss the GPS aspect of the iPhone if I buy the Touch. Any thoughts?

And here we are, one possible case for the iPod touch. The WiFi-auto-locate on the Touch can work pretty well if, of course, you have enough hot spots near you. Then again, how often will you need it when you're on campus? I wouldn't consider this too heavily either way.

iTunes can play some files that an iPod or iPhone can't.

So, I put some music videos in my iTunes library and converted them to be transferred to my iPhone. One video worked, but for the rest, there was no sound on the iPhone copy after I transferred them. Any suggestions?

It's a format or codec problem: iTunes can play some files that an iPod or iPhone can't. You need to crack this file open in an application that can do this conversion; iMovie should suffice, or you can also try the free HandBrake (Handbrake.fr).

Metro's Spending Priorities at Issue

Agency buys furniture but not the food signs rail riders requested

WASHINGTON | For nearly a year, Metro managers have not been able to find money to give riders something they have been asking for: big signs at station entrances declaring that it is illegal to eat or drink in the system. But during the same period, they spent $76,000 on new office furniture and equipment to replace outdated items in two executive conference rooms.

Neither the $75,000 cost of the signs nor the money for new furniture is substantial in Metro's $1.3.billion operating budget. But the decision-making related to them has raised questions among riders about spending priorities and the agency's follow-through on issues directly affecting them, according to riders, officials who deal with the agency and Metro employees.

Three months after Metro unveiled 22 "state-of-the-art" buses, the agency has yet to announce which routes will use them, even though Metrobus chief Milo Victoria promised that the buses would be on the busiest routes by the end of August. It wasn't until last week that Metro publicly disclosed that a track inspector failed to notice the poor conditions that caused an Orange Line train to derail in June.

The amount, in thousands of dollars, that Metro has spent on new office furniture in the last year.

At Metro, many decisions are costly and controversial because of competing political interests. But better signage has long been requested by riders.

Metro Deputy General Manager Gerald Francis acknowledged that his office let the signs slip through the cracks. "It was overlooked, and it's on me," he said. Francis also said his department will find the money and have signs in place by the end of the year.

Third Rush Hour Mixes Up Tysons

Workers getting lunch create traffic mess that trumps morning rush

So many workers drive to lunch in Tysons Corner that it has created a third rush hour during the middle of the day that actually exceeds the morning rush.

Having so many of Tysons' approximately 115,000 workers on the road, often driving less than a mile to grab a sandwich, is complicating construction plans for a new Metrorail extension and Beltway toll lanes that will rip up the streets around Tysons. Things are so bad that traffic planners are introducing a lunchtime shuttle to try to get some of the vehicles off the road.

An analysis of traffic counts shows that the number of vehicles on Tysons' major thoroughfares, Routes 7 and 123, between 11:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. surpasses the morning rush by 24 percent.

Traffic problems will be exacerbated over the next five years as work proceeds on several big projects planned for the area, including the new Metro line with four stops in Tysons and an expansion of the Capital Beltway.

Redskins Sputter Past the Browns

Portis rushes for 175 yards as Washington bounces back with win

REDSKINS | For 2½ quarters, the Washington Redskins and Cleveland Browns produced lots of punts and no points.

Then Clinton Portis really started piling up the yards. Santana Moss starting doing spin moves after catching the ball. London Fletcher led a huge goal line stand. The Browns, not to be outdone, made things interesting with a late touchdown, a 2-point conversion, and a field-goal attempt that was wide right with 25 seconds to play.

After nearly putting the fans to sleep, two teams packed a lot into a little bit of time Sunday. Portis broke the scoreless tie with a 3-yard run in the third quarter and rushed for 175 yards on 27 carries, and Moss spun his way to an 18-yard touchdown reception in the fourth quarter as the Redskins beat the Browns, 14-11.

The Browns nearly recovered from a 14-3 deficit, scoring on Joshua Cribbs' 1-yard catch and Braylon Edwards' 2-point conversion reception with 2:44 to play. Cleveland then forced Washington to punt and drove to the Redskins 36 in the final minute, but Phil Dawson missed what would have been a career-long 54-yard field goal with 25 seconds to play.

The Redskins (5-2) have won five of six, having bounced back from last week's loss to the St. Louis Rams. The Browns (2-4) had won two straight, including last week's upset win over the New York Giants.

The Browns couldn't replicate that magic against the Redskins.

GERALD HERBERT/AP

Redskins running back Clinton Portis rushed for 175 tough yards on Sunday.

Their point production dropped from 35 to 11. Their yards total plummeted from 454 to 236. Derek Anderson went from 310 yards passing to 136 and was hurt by several drops by his receivers. Kellen Winslow didn't catch a pass until late in the fourth quarter.

Portis, meanwhile, kept grinding away in his fourth consecutive 100-yard game. He has 818 yards rushing only seven games into the season. Moss, kept quiet the previous two games, caught four passes for 75 yards. Jason Campbell went a modest 14-for-23 for 164 yards, but he still hasn't thrown an interception all season. Report CARD

➜ Best Call: There were few offensive fireworks, so a tip of the hat to Zorn for sticking with the run. Clinton Portis continued to have his best season in Washington and, one untimely fumble aside, was able to find holes for some big gains.

➜ Worst Call: A bit hypocritical here, but running for first down on 3rd-and-five with Portis just before the two-minute warning screamed of Joe Gibbs' conservatism. The short run gave Cleveland a final shot to win or tie the game, which almost cost the Redskins.

➜ Best Adjustment: Santana Moss was wisely put on special teams, returning a kickoff and punt. He's a playmaker, so giving him the ball is the right idea.

B A blah win in a boring game against a bad team. Still, a 5-2 record is impressive.

Maryland gains share of division lead after defeating Wake Forest

TERPS FOOTBALL | The eerie fashion in which Maryland has performed this season is no joking matter to coach Ralph Friedgen, who has done almost everything imaginable to inspire his team to play to its potential against lesser opponents.

Yet Friedgen couldn't help making light of the situation after the Terrapins knocked off No. 21 Wake Forest 26-0 on Saturday, Maryland's fifth straight win over a ranked foe. Next up: a matchup Saturday against N.C. State (2-5), the only winless team in the ACC.

JOHN MCDONNELL/TWP

Terps offensive lineman Edwin Williams recovers a fumble in Saturday's victory.

"Any way you guys can vote them in the Top 25?" Friedgen asked reporters, flashing a wry grin.

By now, the Terrapins are aware of their biggest flaw. They won as underdogs against Wake Forest, then-No. 23 California and then-No. 20 Clemson. And they were awful as favorites against Middle Tennessee (a 24-14 loss), Virginia (a 31-0 defeat) and Delaware (a 14-7 win).

Friedgen hasn't a clue why Maryland plays up — and down — to the competition. "I can tell you this: If we can find out who we are, and play like we did [Saturday] and keep working, I still think we can get better than we are right now," he said.

Saturday's win lifted Maryland (5-2, 2-1) into a first-place tie in the league's Atlantic Division, and the Terrapins now have the tiebreaker advantage over Wake Forest. So, if Maryland wins its last five regular-season games, it will be playing for the ACC title. DAVID GINSBURG (AP)

Offensive coordinator Cameron gets revenge against former team

The Baltimore Ravens' offensive coordinator orchestrated four scoring drives against the team he coached to only one win last year. Joe Flacco threw for 232 yards and a touchdown to help beat the Dolphins 27-13.

Miami's lone victory last season came against Baltimore in December, and that wasn't enough to save Cameron's job. Since changing teams, he has searched for consistency from the Ravens and finally found it. They mustered scoring drives of 42, 67, 67 and 68 yards, with each lasting at least nine plays.

Ravens linebacker Terrell Suggs runs back an interception for a touchdown.

The NFL's top-ranked defense did the rest. Terrell Suggs scored on a 44-yard interception return, and the Ravens limited Ronnie Brown to 27 yards rushing. Baltimore blitzed to contain Miami's Wildcat offense, which netted only 4 yards in five plays.

The Ravens (3-3) broke a three-game losing streak and won for the first time in their five visits to Miami. The Dolphins fell to 2-4 and remained last in the AFC East.

Cowboys Flop Sans Romo

34 | 14

Rams' offense explodes for second straight win under new head coach

NFL | Even on the road, the chorus of "Romo!, Romo!" from Dallas Cowboys fans was easily audible at the start of the second half.

But they were stuck with Brad Johnson. The 40-year-old backup quarterback couldn't keep up with a suddenly potent, opportunistic St. Louis Rams offense, throwing three interceptions. Steven Jackson ran for 160 yards on 25 carries with three touchdowns and the Rams (2-4) looked like contenders instead of sad sacks for the second straight game under new coach Jim Haslett in a surprisingly easy 34-14 victory on Sunday.

The Rams won 19-17 at Washington last week in their first game since replacing Scott Linehan, ending a run of 17 losses in 20 games and four blowout losses to start the season.

DILIP VISHWANAT/GETTY IMAGES

Rams running back Steven Jackson ran for 160 yards and three touchdowns against the Dallas Cowboys, who played without starting quarterback Tony Romo.

Their response to Haslett, beginning his second stint as a head coach, has exceeded expectations. St. Louis' defense did its part, forcing four turnovers for the second straight game.

Marion Barber had 100 yards on 18 carries and the game's opening touchdown for Dallas.

Romo looked fine throwing in pre-game warmups with his hand wrapped, and dressed as the backup. But he ended up staying on the sideline with an injury the team originally believed would sideline him a month.

Johnson was 6-for-18 for 66 yards in the first half while the Cowboys fell behind 24-7. He finished 17-for-34 for 234 yards and throwing his only touchdown pass to Martellus Bennett inside the two-minute warning.

Jimmie Johnson has the largest Chase lead at this point in NASCAR's history.

Johnson Closes in On Title

Two-time defending champ races off with win at Martinsville

AUTO RACING | Jimmie Johnson won again at Martinsville Speedway on Sunday, padding his lead in his bid for a third straight title with four races to go.

The two-time defending series champion led 339 laps as he and his Hendrick Motorsports teammates dominated once more on the oldest, smallest and trickiest circuit in the Sprint Cup Series.

Johnson won the fall race at this track for the third consecutive time. It was his fifth career victory on the 0.526-mile oval and fourth in the last five races.

Teammate Dale Earnhardt Jr. finished second, followed by Carl Edwards and Jeff Gordon, giving Hendrick three of the top four spots. The 1-2 finish was the 23rd for the multicar team and third at Martinsville. "I didn't have anything for Jimmie," Earnhardt said. "That car was so awesome."

Johnson increased his lead from 69 points over Jeff Burton to 149 over Greg Biffle. Burton started second and finished 17th.

Johnson heads to Atlanta with the largest points lead in the history of the Chase at this point. (AP)

Desperate House-Mom

Molly Shannon aims to be her daughter's pal on 'Kath & Kim'

FIRECRACKERS | Picking a daughter is a difficult task. It's especially tough when the daughter is Kim, a Doritos-scarfing princess of suburbia who's tethered by co-dependency (and an ampersand) to her mom Kath on the new NBC comedy "Kath & Kim."

Molly Shannon was a shoo-in to play 40-ish firecracker Kath in this U.S. version of the Australian hit. But finding the right actress for peevish, midriff-flaunting Kim wasn't such a snap.

"So many people came in," Shannon recalled. "I would fly out to L.A. and read with them: So many talented people!" And it mirrored her own past. "I had so many years of rejection, I could feel for all of them."

Of course, the lean years for Shannon ended in 1995 with NBC's "Saturday Night Live," where she flourished for six seasons.

Now Shannon's hopes are high for "Kath & Kim," whose third episode airs 8:30 p.m. on NBC Thursday. She stars alongside Selma Blair, who demonstrates that considering anyone else for the role was a waste of everybody's time.

MITCHELL HAASETH/NBC

The 36-year-old Blair (with films that include "Legally Blonde," "Hellboy" and its recent sequel) gets a hearty vote of confidence from Shannon, who credits her with "a funny darkness. And she's very strong and fearless."

She's hilarious as the trashy self-proclaimed "trophy wife" who has walked out on Craig (Mikey Day), her husband-dude of six weeks, because he won't take her to Applebee's for dinner every night, and moves back home with Kath.

As Kath, meanwhile, Shannon is a comic salvo of pluckiness and shopping-mall chic. Kath is a striver whose latest mark of success is her romance with Phil (John Michael Higgins), the smarmy sandwich-shop owner who Kim views dimly as a rival for her mother's affection.

"I think of Kath as someone who really tries, who's a survivor," says Shannon over a salad and a shot-and-a-half iced cappuccino. "She's trying to seem smarter or fancier than she really is." And also younger: Bonding with Kim more like a sister than a mom, Kath is committed to defying her age, among a host of other inconvenient truths.

"You, Kath Day, are happy," Kath decrees, mantra-like, her defensive grin in place. "Happiness comes to you easily" As long as she works at it hard enough. FRAZIER MOORE (AP)

Motown Loses a Friend

Four Tops lead singer Levi Stubbs dies in his sleep Friday at 72

OBIT | Four Tops lead singer Levi Stubbs, who possessed one of the most dynamic and emotive voices of all the Motown singers, died Friday at 72.

He had been ill recently and died in his sleep at the Detroit house he shared with his wife, said Dana Meah, the wife of a grandson. The Wayne County medical examiner's office also confirmed the death.

With Stubbs in the lead, the Four Tops sold millions of records, including such hits as "Baby I Need Your Loving," "Reach Out (I'll Be There)" and "I Can't Help Myself (Sugar Pie, Honey Bunch)."

The group performed for more than four decades without a change in personnel. Stubbs' death leaves one surviving member of the original group: Abdul "Duke" Fakir.

Stubbs "fits right up there with all the icons of Motown," said Audley Smith, chief operating officer of the Motown Historical Museum. "His voice was as unique as Marvin's or as Smokey's or as Stevie's."

Stubbs is survived by his wife, five children and 11 grandchildren.

Brush Up on Bond

A slew of 007 goodies can help you prep for 'Quantum of Solace'

DVD | With Daniel Craig set to reprise his James Bond role in "Quantum of Solace," his first 007 adventure arrives in a new DVD version and debuts on Blu-ray. The film takes Bond back to his early days as a raw operative for British intelligence, taking on a terrorism financier in a high-stakes poker tournament and meeting — then losing — the love of his life (Eva Green). The three-disc DVD and two-disc Blu-ray sets have segments on the stunt work, the legacy of Bond women and Craig's preparations to take over a role previously handled by other actors.

Also out is a new DVD version of the 1967 spoof version of Bond creator Ian Fleming's "Casino Royale," featuring a horde of "James Bonds" including David Niven, Peter Sellers and Woody Allen. The disc includes commentary with a couple Bond experts.

And some of the gadget-loving Bond's past exploits also come to high-definition for the first time as six 007 titles debut on Blu-ray. Two three-disc sets pack three Bond films each, one with "Dr. No," "Die Another Day" and "Live and Let Die," and the other with "For Your Eyes Only," "From Russia With Love" and "Thunderball." Each Blu-ray title also is available separately. DAVID GERMAIN (AP)

NOTICE OF AVAILABILITY

TRANSFER OF JURISDICTION OF CERTAIN NATIONAL PARK SERVICE PROPERTIES TO THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA GOVERNMENT ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT

The National Park Service (NPS) and the District of Columbia (District) has made available to all interested parties an Environmental Assessment (EA) for the proposed transfer of jurisdiction of a portion of Fort Dupont Park from the NPS to the District. The NPS is considering transferring jurisdiction to the District over a 15-acre parcel at one end of Fort Dupont Park (the Project Area), that is currently used for recreational purposes. The transfer would facilitate the development of new recreational facilities and programs in the Project Area by the District, including a proposal to create a baseball academy for area youth and another to expand an existing indoor ice skating arena. The District's proposal would involve the help of private-sector partners. If implemented, the land that is jurisdictionally transferred would no longer be managed by NPS and would no longer be a part of Fort Dupont Park. The 376-acre Fort Dupont Park is one of the Civil War Defenses of Washington and is one of the Fort Circle Parks managed by the NPS. In 2004, the NPS completed the Management Plan and an action to transfer these lands to the District would likely result in amendment of that plan.

The EA is available for review on-line at http://parkplanning.nps.gov/NACE, and at the following locations: a) The Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial Library - 901 G Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20001; b) National Capital Parks – East, 1900 Anacostia Dr. SE, Washington, D.C. 20020; and c) the Fort Dupont Ice Arena, 3779 Ely Place, SE, Washington, D.C. 20019. To request a hard copy of the EA, please contact: Gayle Hazelwood, Superintendent, National Capital Parks-East, RE: Fort Dupont Park Land Transfer Proposal, by e-mail at Gayle_Hazelwood@nps.gov or by telephone at (202) 690-5127.

The comment period on this EA began on October 16 and will run through November 17, 2008. Comments can be submitted electronically at: http://parkplanning.nps.gov/NACE. Written comments may be sent to: Superintendent, Fort Dupont Park, National Capital Parks – East, Fort Dupont Land Transfer EA, 1900 Anacostia Dr. SE, Washington, DC 20020. All comments received on the EA during the comment period will be considered prior to any final decision made on this proposed action.

Fathers And Their Daughters

Tim McGraw puts his feelings about being a dad into a kids book

KIDDIE LIT | Tim McGraw, the father of three girls, says it can be tough on dads with daughters, so he's co-written a children's book that offers them advice: It's not so much what you do with your daughters as it is the time you spend with them.

"My Little Girl," which McGraw co-wrote with Tom Douglas, will be released Tuesday by Thomas Nelson Publishers. It tells the story of a father — in a dark cowboy hat, of course — who spends a fun day with his little girl, Katie, doing nothing in particular.

They stop by the farm co-op, lay in the grass gazing at the clouds and play on a tire swing.

KEVIN WINTER/GETTY IMAGES

Don't be fooled — Tim McGraw knows about more than wearing cool hats.

McGraw, 41, says he enjoys spending time with his daughters — ages 11, 10 and 6 — but if he did what they liked doing, he'd spend a lot of time shopping at the mall or getting pedicures.

"It's something that as a father you kind of have to sacrifice what you want to do, because boys do what you want to do. If I want to go to the farm and shoot guns or ride four-wheelers in the mud when it's 40 degrees ... the girls aren't really interested in doing that."

But McGraw says he's found that his girls like coming along while he does simple, everyday stuff, such as running to the grocery store or stopping by the office.

"Do what you have to do in your regular routine and take them with you. It makes all the difference in the world," he said.

McGraw's wife, Faith Hill, wrote the forward. "I hope this story provides quality time for fathers and daughters to enjoy each other's company and make memories reading together," she wrote.

While Hill loved the book, McGraw said, the girls were far less enthusiastic.

"If it doesn't have Chris Brown or the Jonas Brothers involved, they don't care," he joked.

Still Depressed?

If you (or someone you know) have been diagnosed with major depression, you may be able to participate in this research study designed to decrease symptoms and better understand causes of depression. This study tests whether a new medication that targets a system called glutamate, compared with placebo, will be effective in improving depression. This is a 10-week inpatient study, in Bethesda, MD. After completion of the study the participant is given short-term treatment and transitioned back to the community. In addition, all research participation is without cost.

Patients should:
• Be ages 18-55
• Have been diagnosed with major depression
• Have taken an antidepressant that did not help

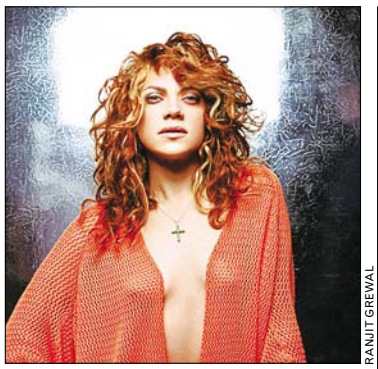
Quality Without Quantity

Even if Nikka Costa doesn't sell records, her music is top-notch

MUSIC | Will "Pebble to a Pearl" finally give Nikka Costa some mainstream success?

The soulful singer released her first CD, "Everybody Got Their Something," seven years ago with Virgin Records, but despite the catchy title track, she didn't become the breakout star despite considerable pre-album buzz. Her under-the-radar sophomore release, "can'tneverdidnothin'" didn't help matters.



RANJIT GREWAL

Costa's "Pebble to a Pearl" is an album the public would be wise to notice.

Big sales may still elude Costa with her third CD, released through Stax Records. But if that's the case, it won't be because of the quality of her music. On her latest effort, the singer-songwriter shines on all 12 tracks. Working with producer and husband Justin Mitchell Stanley, the Los Angeles-born singer takes on many roles, from the clingy girlfriend on "Stuck to You" to the understandably selfish "Can't Please Everybody" to even making a man cry on the funny "Cry Baby."

The anti-war "Bullets in the Sky" is exceptional and so is the hopelessly romantic "Someone for Everyone." Costa's raspy voice adds vibrance to this delightful CD. (AP)

Secret Director Man

Marc Forster steps out of the shadows to take charge of Bond

ROOKIE | Eyebrows shot up around the world when it was announced in June 2007 that Marc Forster would be helming the newest James Bond adventure. Never mind that the German-born director of such small-scale character pieces as "Monster's Ball" and "Finding Neverland" had never made an action film before — he had never made a movie that cost more than $50 million.

As it happens, Forster himself initially agreed with the naysayers. "I said, 'Did you get the wrong director?'" the filmmaker remembers asking producers Michael G. Wilson and Barbara Broccoli.

Any concerns that Forster had about being able to find the right take on the Bond franchise vanished as soon as he committed to "Quantum of Solace." In "Casino Royale," Campbell and Craig had already reinvented the character, moving him away from the hi-tech hijinks of the Pierce Brosnan era to a rougher, more realistic breed of secret agent man. Forster knew that he wanted to continue along that path, making a film that would be, as he describes it, "a '70s conspiracy thriller with a little Hitchcock thrown in."

"I wanted to confront issues that we're dealing with in the real world," Forster says. "Bond has lost someone he loves, and it makes him very vulnerable, which in turn makes him more interesting." ETHAN ALTER (FILM JOURNAL INTERNATIONAL)

JOHN RUSSO

Until now, Forster has done lower-budget movies such as "Monster's Ball."

Nicole Sullivan stars in the new domestic sitcom 'Rita Rocks'

LET DOWN | With her arrival in the original cast of "Mad TV" in 1995, Nicole Sullivan quickly proved herself as a sparkling and versatile comedian.

Unfortunately, that late-night sketch show didn't prove to be the launching pad she deserved. Her TV work since — including a short-lived embarrassment called "Hot Properties" and a supporting role as a dog walker on "The King of Queens" — never did her justice.

Her new Lifetime sitcom, "Rita Rocks," doesn't quite do the trick either. But it's a pleasant domestic half-hour with a twist: Sullivan plays Rita Clemens, a harried, overworked suburban wife and mother who looks to recapture her fancy-free past as a guitarist by forming a garage band with a few folks from around the neighborhood.

DANNY FIELD/LIFETIME

M.I.L.T.R.W.: Nicole Sullivan plays a "Mom I'd Like to Rock With" on Lifetime.

To borrow from Loggins and Messina, can this mama rock 'n' roll while keeping the home scene in required equilibrium?

More importantly, can she make viewers laugh?

Lifetime is rolling out "Rita Rocks" this Monday through Friday at 8:30 p.m. before installing it in a weekly Tuesday slot starting Oct. 28. But you can sample the premiere episode online right now.

The series co-stars Richard Ruccolo, Kelly Gould, Natalie Dreyfuss, Raviv Ullman, Tisha Campbell-Martin and Ian Gomez.

Rich Dad Poor Dad

One dad was highly educated and intelligent; he had a Ph.D. and had completed four years of undergraduate work in less than two years. He then went to do his advanced studies... all on full financial scholarships.

My other dad never finished the eighth grade. Both men were successful in their careers, working hard all their lives. Both earned substantial incomes.

Yet my highly educated dad struggled financially all his life and the other dad would become one of the richest men I had ever known. One died leaving tens of millions of dollars to his family, charities, and his church. The other left a legacy of unpaid bills. Both men were strong, charismatic, and influential.

Both men offered me advice, but they did not advise the same things. Having two dads as advisors offered me the perspective of contrasting points of view: one of a rich man and one of a poor man. This forced me to think about, and ultimately choose, a way of thinking for myself. A way of thinking that assures long-term wealth and true prosperity!

Songs of a Storyteller

Hello Saferide's first lady reports to the world via indie pop

MUSIC | Annika Norlin knows being a professional journalist doesn't offer a lot of job security, so she went for something more stable: rock star.

"I've worked at a lot of newspapers before, but I've been working with radio [recently]," said Norlin, better known under her band name, Hello Saferide. "But I had to give that up because it took too much time."

That's because the Stockholm, Sweden-based artist's musical projects became more and more popular, from Japan (where Hello Saferide has a record contact) to Brazil (where the group toured recently). Meanwhile, in 2007, her Swedish-language project, "Säkert!," won two Grammis (Sweden's Grammy equivalent).

SANDRA LOV

VALUABLE SKILL SET: Norlin's background as a journalist is evident in her music.

Norlin brings her band to the United States for several shows to spotlight the group's new CD, "More Modern Short Stories From Hello Saferide." Like the first record, this record is filled with gorgeous melodies, but it's a more musically mature version of 2005's "Introducing ... Hello Saferide."

"For a while, I was really into the indie pop that resembles twee — you know, based on hand claps and stuff like that. But I kind of got sick of that after a while," Norlin said. "So, while the first Hello Saferide sounds like that, both the 'Säkert!' album and the new Hello album I sing in my normal voice, instead of sounding like a small girl, and no hand claps."

But what hasn't changed is Norlin's gift for clever storytelling. "When you're a journalist, you have to write three stories a day and you have to write very short," she said. "So, I think I learned how to do that — to tell a story without an extreme amount of words."

Honorary Native Son

Washington has been running a stealthy and underhanded campaign in which it has been attempting to pilfer the legacy of Walt Whitman from New York. OK, so D.C. has a valid claim — he lived here for a long time, and he worked for the government. Bill Largess has put together a one-man show in Whitman's own words, "Swift to My Wounded," and it's free at the National Theatre tonight. So, head there to learn more about Whitman, or just to make a lot of tasteless jokes along the lines of "I swifted to your MOM's wounded." Hey, that's where my mind went, too. F.Z.

I'll answer your questions in order: 1. Yes, that's a hamster. 2. Blood. 3. You don't want to know. 4. Aaron Burr. It's almost Halloween, and before Halloween was about candy corn and Sarah Palin costumes, it was about scaring the crap out of each other with movies. Thus the Spooky Movie Festival at Cinema Arts Theatre. It ends tonight, so if you want to check out the blood and gore, get moving. But don't forget the zombie repellent. F.Z.

He's All Yours

Looking for a way to mellow out your manic Monday? You could grab some Calgon and candles, and slip into a long, relaxing bubble bath. Or you could catch that cool, collected crooner Jason Mraz at Constitution Hall, and let his sweet acoustic goodness take you away. Don't be ashamed, ladies — we know, he sounds pretty darn good sometimes. Also featured is dreamy Irish crooner Lisa Hannigan. (You may know her as that chick who's always hanging around Damien Rice). K.P.

More baby boomers sign up to volunteer abroad after retiring

As a new member of the Peace Corps, Ralph Bernstein is trying to get used to the heat and humidity in the equatorial African nation of Ghana, the bone-jarring rides over unpaved roads and unsanitary conditions.

It would be a challenge for volunteers in their 20s. Bernstein just turned 85.

The Dayton man is the oldest current volunteer in the Peace Corps and part of a tidal wave of volunteers age 50 and older.

The agency last year started a marketing strategy to try to capitalize on the trend of baby boomers looking for a nontraditional retirement. It is the first time the corps has targeted older volunteers as a group and on a national scale.

Bernstein, whose wife died two years ago, said he was looking for something to make his life rewarding.

This is the first time the corps has targeted older volunteers as a group.

"If I weren't working, I'd say: 'What am I getting up in the morning for?'" the engineer and Yale graduate said in a telephone interview from Ghana, where he teaches biology, chemistry and physics to children in secondary school.

When the Peace Corps was created in 1961, the idea of promoting world peace by supplying developing nations with trained manpower was irresistible to many young volunteers.

Today, about 5 percent of the Peace Corps' 8,079 volunteers are 50 or older, many of them serving as teachers. The number of applications from people in that age group has jumped nearly 40 percent this year. That's 9.4 percent of the total number of applicants, the highest percentage in the 47-year history of the corps.

"It seems this generation is still looking to put their skills and knowledge to work," said Peace Corps spokeswoman Christine Torres.

The agency still recruits the young heavily. But the experience of older volunteers qualifies them for higher-level programs, Torres said, and they command an instant respect because elders are revered in many cultures.

A new Peace Corps Web site has been created for this group. Brochures and direct mailings target those 50 and older who fit the Peace Corps profile.

Former volunteers who served in the corps when they were 50 or older were hired and placed in the agency's 11 regional offices to recruit people their own age. Information sessions for older prospective volunteers are being held at libraries, Rotary Clubs, AARP meetings and colleges that offer courses for senior citizens.

Some overseas offices have changed their practices to accommodate older volunteers.

PEACE CORPS/AP

The Peace Corps' oldest volunteer, Ralph Bernstein, 85, left, is sworn into the corps.

To make it easier to learn foreign languages, more emphasis is being placed on oral and visual teaching and less on written materials. Language tutors are made available to older volunteers throughout their service.

Offices are being stocked with more and different medications and medical equipment directed at illnesses and maladies common to older people.

Denney and Linda Rives, both 60, of Kansas City, Mo., left in September for a two-year tour in Azerbaijan — nestled between Iran and Russia — after selling their house and disposing of their cars.

"It's funny being homeless," Denney Rives said. "It was a big step. It's an odd feeling, but it is sort of exciting."

Rives, a Baptist minister who later went into computer programming, said he obtained a student deferment during the Vietnam War and feels some guilt about escaping the combat.

"I owe my country two years," he said. "This is a way I can serve."

The oldest volunteer in Peace Corps history was Arthur Goodfriend, of Honolulu. He finished his second tour in Hungary in 1994 at 86. JAMES HANNAH (AP)

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS AS OF 5 P.M.

WITH PRESIDENT BUSH NOT YET OUT OF OFFICE, IS THE TIMING WRONG FOR OLIVER STONE'S 'W.'?

NO 64% | YES 36%

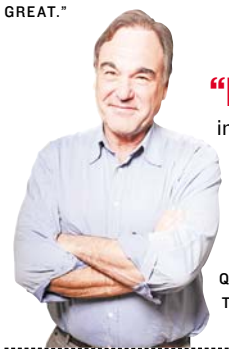
"No, the timing isn't wrong. I think the movie is a good reminder of all the bad things that happened during Bush's presidency."

AN ANONYMOUS COMMENTER, WHO ADDED, "I WON'T BE WATCHING THE MOVIE IN THE THEATER MYSELF; IT DOESN'T LOOK THAT GREAT."

"What's the difference? Nothing will change because of the movie. We've had eight years of 'SNL' and 'Mad TV' making fun of him. Why care now?"

COMMENTER TRUPATRIOT, WHO ADDED, "THOSE WHO SUPPORT HIM STILL WILL, AND THOSE WHO HATE HIM STILL WILL."



"Not for Bush-bashing or the pending election, just economics: After Jan. 20, all things about this administration will be old news. [It] makes sense that there is a 'deadline' to get 'W.' released and the box office money in the bank."

The TV Column

Post TV columnist LISA DE MORAES was online Friday and talked about NBC's skimpy prime-time lineup, the future of "Swingtown" and why she'll be a channel surfer on election night.

How's "The Office" looking long-term? I was disappointed with the hour-long episodes, but I must say that the past two weeks have been an improvement. I am hoping that we'll get more episodes like the past two.

It's considered one of few bright spots on NBC's prime-time slate. You needn't worry about this one. Of course, with the head guys working madly on the Amy Poehler show, there's always a chance "The Office" will be given to some lousy writer.

I still miss "Swingtown." I realize it's time to let it go, but they just don't make trash like that anymore. Is there any buzz that another (cable) channel will pick it up, or am I just in the minority of people who want it back?

You are part of a very elite group of fans — really, really, really elite.

Did you watch David Letterman's show on Thursday? I was surprised by how hard-hitting he was. It was not the Oprah love-fest I imagined it was going to be. I'm not sure what it says when McCain gets a better grilling from Letterman than from the mainstream media.

I did watch and was surprised Dave asked some at least tough-ish questions. And not just "what happened" regarding canceling on him a month ago. The Liddy question was amusing, if only because McCain seemed momentarily thrown, and the bin Laden bit was hilarious.

So, which channel do you intend to watch for election night coverage? We used to watch CNN, but now that we just got FiOS, James Carville in HD is just too scary.

Carville in HD — yikes. Hope you don't have a huge screen. I am a serial channel-changer on election night. I don't stick with any one channel for very long. I like watching the mix.

If it's Thursday night, why do they say "Live from New York, it's Saturday night"? Do they think we're stupid?

That is one teensy problem with airing "Saturday Night Live" on Thursday night that the NBC suits do not seem to have worked out.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) This is a good day for exploring what lies before you—at a fast or slow pace, whichever suits your mood at the moment. Curiosity reigns.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) This may prove to be a busy, fast-paced day. There is a lot for you to get done at this time in order to prepare for upcoming events and endeavors.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Don'trush into anything. Take the time to consider options, determine the risks involved and plan for unexpected developments.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your enthusiastic approach is catching, and others will benefit from your energy and vision. This is no time to lie low; take a stand.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Cost is not a major factor; you're more concerned with value—at least for now. Remember that it's the thought that counts.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Issues revolving around career and/or home stability will demand your attention—even though you're supposed to be off at this time.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) That which sneaks up on you is likely to be most important. Don't ignore the little things going on all around you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're not one to be easily dominated; you are feeling strong, inspired and energetic. Later in the day, you may enjoy an emotional rejuvenation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your vision into the past — and the future, perhaps — is clearer now than it has been. You'll be enlightened about a former friend or lover.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A look into the future may yield a surprising vision. Now is no time to shrug off any instincts; take the time to begin making concrete plans.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Bargain hunting can surely pay off handsomely — and you may be surprised to learn just what it is you really like in the way of home comforts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Now is no time to be too leisurely or relaxed. Success depends on giving every step your attention, care and dedication.

McCain's Arms Hurt in War

I AM FLABBERGASTED and disgusted that Express published Listentoleon.net's comment about Sen. John McCain's arms (Blog Log, Oct. 17). He cannot reach across a table or over his head due to the torture he suffered as a POW during the Vietnam War. How you did not know this escapes me. If you ignored it, then my condemnation of your printing it goes deeper. You should know better than to print the ramblings of someone who chooses to poke fun at the war wounds of a man who, politics aside, is one of our nation's greatest heroes.

17 People Needed to Distract Audience

LIZA MINNELLI will return to Broadway in December for the first time in nearly a decade in a two-week engagement of "Liza's at the Palace." Minnelli will play the legendary vaudeville house Dec. 3-14. She will be accompanied by pianist-musical supervisor Billy Stritch, a 12-piece orchestra and four dancer-singers. The show will feature some of Minnelli's best-known songs, particularly numbers such as "Cabaret," "Maybe This Time" and "New York, New York." (AP)
